KALEIDOSCOPE 1980 MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE

In 1980, approximately 400 seniors graduated from Middlebury College. Their perspectives on Middlebury, town and college, on themselves, and on each other have been altered during their acquaintance with Middlebury.

A kaleidoscope allows one to look at a single object and yet see many variations of it. That single object is Middlebury.

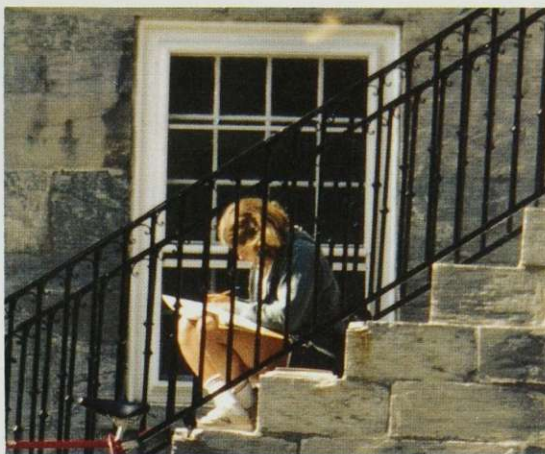

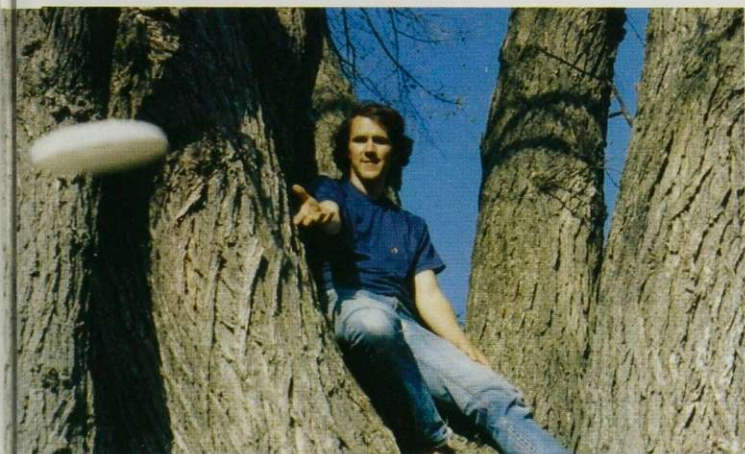

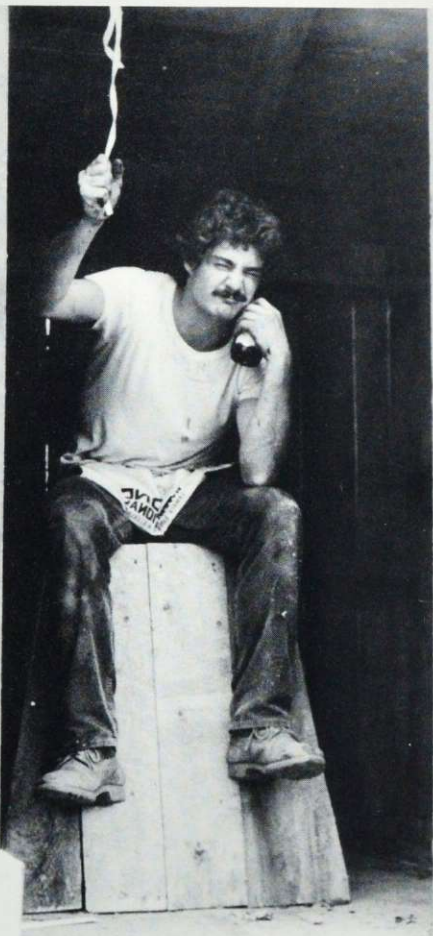

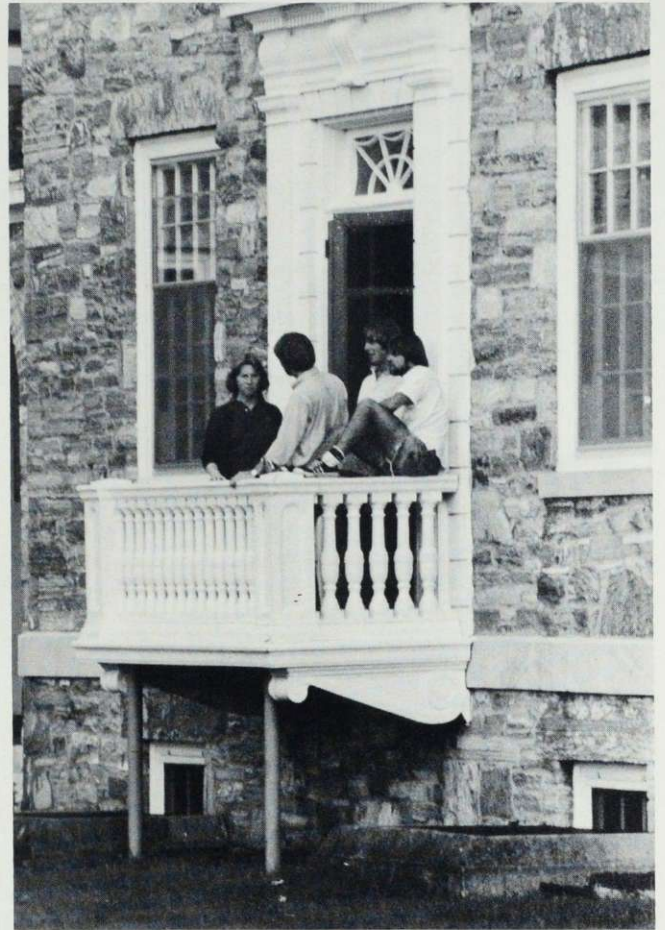

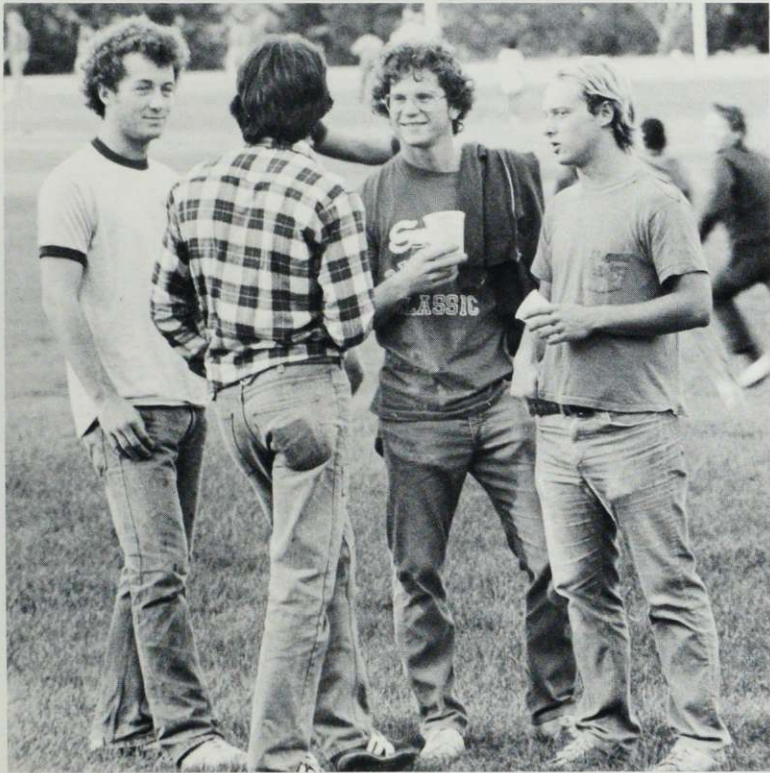

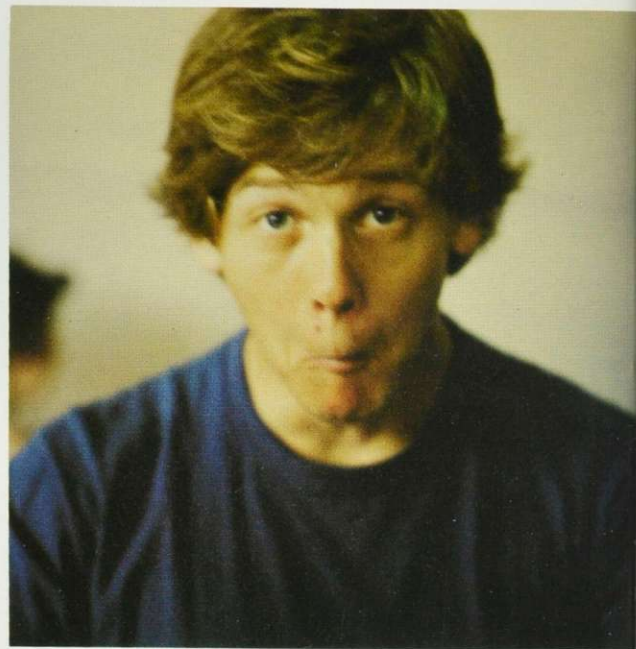

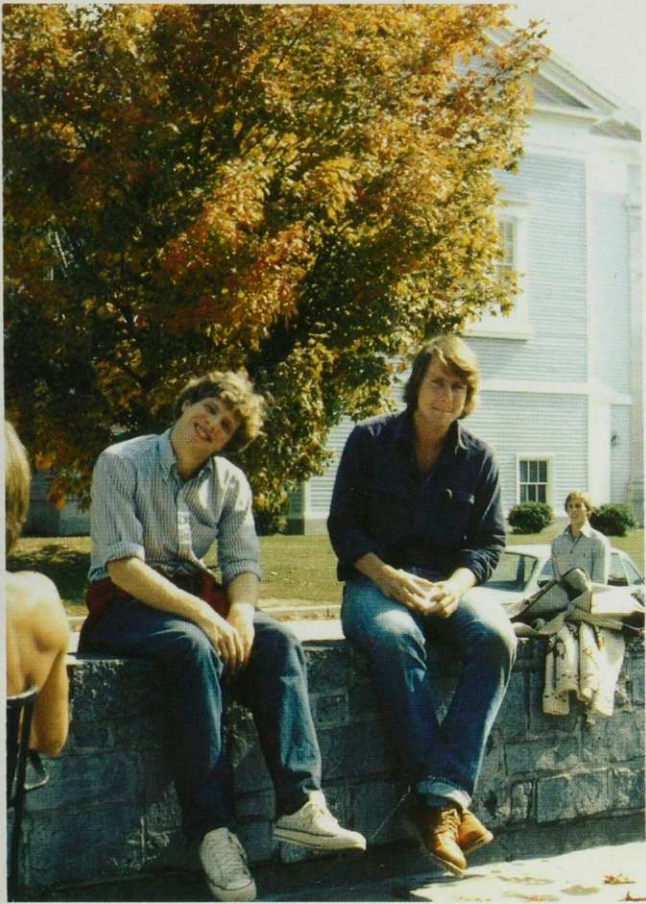

One may be led to believe that life at Middlebury College is a perpetual tailgate party. That is not necessarily so, yet it is difficult to get pictures of Monkville. Its residents may be hostile, and besides, studying does not make interesting subject matter. Parties are more palatable. Hence, there will be limited coverage here of the perspective of seniors engaged in thesis writing.

Once upon a time I went to Middlebury College and learned about all-nighters, pop-corn, ultimate frisbee, Jorma, Jah, The Grateful Dead, "townies," Preppies, swimming quarries or cascades, living on synthetic food (simple survival), eating with chopsticks, and maybe a little more . . . It was ALL fun, often hectic but worth it . . .

I was a freshman who thought that life held unreasonable pressures. Everyone said that college would be the best years of my life. I scoffed. Then came the end. As I looked at work, marriage, bumming around, I realized that they were right.

Why do freshmen seem to get shorter and younger with each successive class? Did we really stick out as much as they do? Funny, four years is a long time to have gone by so quickly.

Biggest disappointment: Seashell City

Once upon a time when I went to Middlebury College there were carefree, happy groups known as frats, who cooked their own meals and enjoyed a lot of autonomy from things on the "hill."

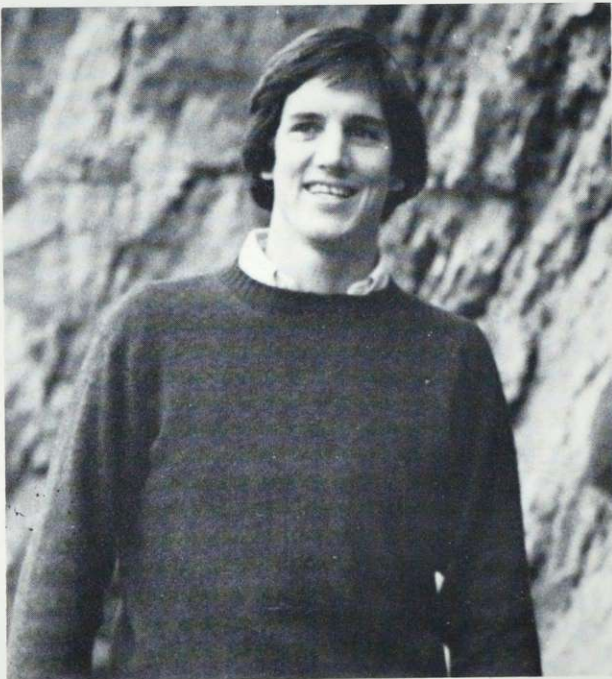

I don't think all that much will change when the frats lose dining privileges. It may bring the school even closer.

Diversity at Middlebury? Of course it exists here. Just look at the varied styles of dress. There are red CB jackets, blue ones with grey stripes, grey ones with blue stripes. And the Bean moccasins come in blue, green, red, and brown. And hell, I can't remember the last time I saw two monogrammed sweaters with the same initials on them.

-WINTER CARNIVAL-

The theme of this year's carnival was "The Blizzard of Oz." The festive spirit was hampered by the unseasonable lack of snow. The skiing events had to be moved to Lake Placid and Stowe and the snow sculptures were therefore somewhat limited in their scope (there were none).

MIDDLEBURY INDUSTRIAL PARK

Want to maintain close ties with Middlebury Town and College? Have you thought about moving your business to Vermont? Part of your planning should include consideration of a site in our 130 acre Industrial Park, situated 1.5 miles north of Middlebury Village and adjacent to the Vermont Railroad. Municipal water and sewer, 3 phase electric power, a 5 acre retention pond are just some of the features of this attractive, convenient location.
